

COLD STORAGE PROBE CAUSES WARM DEBATE

Thermometer Around 100 Mark, But That Doesn't Matter.

SHARP CRITICISM OF GOVERNMENT

Relation Of The Forestry Battalions To Patriotic Fund.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
OTTAWA, Ont., July 30.—This was the warmest day parliament has experienced during the present protracted summer season. Outside the parliament buildings the thermometer touched the 100 mark while within the building conditions were very little better. The curtains provided to improve its acoustic properties were removed in order to let in as much fresh air as possible from the windows behind. Members who were not engaged in the discussion gathered in groups at the open windows trying to

Despite the great heat a fairly lively debate developed on the motion to go into supply when George Kyte of Richmond discussed at some length the report of W. F. O'Connor, the cost of living commissioner, relating to the conditions of Canadian cold storage plants. There was considerable criticism of the government by Mr. Kyte, D. D. McKenzie, E. M. McDonald and Hon. Frank Oliver, more particularly in regard to the appointment of the second commission to deal with the matter of overhead charges, etc., not included in connection with Mr. O'Connor's findings as to the profits made on bacon, by the William Davies company.

Rate for Bacon

Mr. MacDonald said that the house was apt to forget the perspective of the man who has to live on a small wage and pay 50 cents the retail price for bacon. Ever since the house met six months ago, he said, the opposition had been pressing upon the government the desirability of action being taken to reduce the cost of living.

Finally there had been issued W. F. O'Connor's report. He quoted the report as stating that transaction had occurred in connection with which prosecutions could have been instituted.

Mr. MacDonald wanted to know if any companies, other than the William Davies company, had previous to the issue of this report, declined to answer the questions as to the cost of bacon laid down including overhead charges.

Mr. Crothers said that, speaking generally, he believed the Matthews-Blackwell and other companies had given this information.

Food Increase Enormous

Hon. Frank Oliver made the estimate that the burden of the cost of food has increased in Canada since the war began by approximately $250,000,000 a year. This, he said, was a burden on industry, which would only be met by increasing the cost of the products of industry. The condition was one which is putting Canada out

The problem is bigger and wider than the William Davies company. Canada, Mr. Oliver declared, was more under the control of monopolies and trusts than any other country in the world. The situation was controlled by a little ring of combinations and

Mr. Oliver said it was quite as proper to fix the price of bacon for Joseph Flavelle as to fix the price of wheat. 'Let us have action in both cases,' he said. The moment prohibition of the export of wheat was put into effect and the price named, bacon should have been dealt with also. The government should prevent the miller, the pork packer and the middleman from stealing from the producer and consumer. He referred to Sir Joseph "Lavelle as "the pork baron."

A. K. MacLean asked if the food controller had the power to fix prices. Mr. Crothers said he assumed that he had power to name prices under certain circumstances.

Mr. MacLean contended that this debate had made it abundantly clear that the second commission in connection with the cost of living was unnecessary.

They maintained that Mr. O'Connor had recommended the appointment not of a commission but of a cost accountant who could ascertain these figures. Mr. MacDonald maintained that if the Wm. Davies company had replied to the questions put by Mr.

Hon. T. W. Crothers deprecated the discussion of the matter in the house on the ground that it was subjudice.

He said that the O'Connor report stated that there was no excessive accumulation of food products and that the profits of most of the companies has been small. He expressed the hope that the report of the new commission when received would command the confidence of the people. He said that the margin of the small dealer had not risen so rapidly as that of the large dealers because the latter were exporting and ocean rates had gone up tremendously.

During consideration of the militia estimates at a late hour James Douglas, of Strathcona, said that a number of men who had enlisted to do special work such as sawyers in foresry battalions received higher pay than the regular soldiers. They discovered subsequently, that their wives were not allowed to have aid from the Patriotic fund. He was afraid there had been misrepresentation.

Sir Edward Kemp said that so far as he was aware no complaints had reached the department. The purpose

Mr. Douglas said that the fact remains that these men were induced to join by false pretenses. They had not been told that their wives would not receive aid from the War Relie-

Bodies Are Viewed By Jury and Then Are Released By Corner Forin to Relatives for Burial—Great Interest Being Taken in Evidence—Missing Train Dispatcher Harrington Has Not Yet Been Found.

The inquest on the five victims of the C. N. R. collision on Saturday evening at Calahoo Indian reserve was begun, but postponed until Sylvester J. Harrington, railway operator, who is missing, can be located by the police.

Coroner Dr. A. Forin at the undertaking rooms of Coombs and McKinley Monday afternoon after the shooting. He was interviewed by the jury in adjournment which was made after the afternoon session was at the request of the Canadian News. The jury will return its verdict from Winnipeg may be present at the hearing.

Frank Ford, K.C. represented the Attorney-General's Department. He was assisted by the evidence composed of the following:

John W. Foster, Empire block (foreman).
Walter M. Peterson, 9532 36th avenue.
Arthur J. Lyle, 1014 12th street.
John D. Good, 9014 102nd avenue.
John Arthur Smith, 10146 119th street.
Charles J. Glick, 1212 1st street.

After the bodies of the victims had been viewed at the undertaking rooms an order was given by the coroner for their removal to the cemetery. Their relatives may arrange for their burial.

Great interest was taken in the inquiry by the coroner by N. H. officials, city physicians and well attended by the victims' and others more directly interested. There was a large number of citizens present.

Further hearings will be in the District Court Room, Courthouse beginning at two o'clock today.

Harrington is alleged to be the man responsible for the smash-up. He has been employed by the Canadian Northern for some time. It is reported that he was tragically was enraged as a telegraph operator in the dispatching department. Friends of his, however, have become greatly unconcerned when aware of the wreck and its consequences and that he fled from the scene. But the Saturday Globe commenced to collect.

Friends of the missing man and detective agencies are looking for him. It is said somewhere in the city and that he has not left Edmonton as was at first alleged.

The police acted at an early hour this morning that Harrington had not been arrested up to that time.

C.N.R. INQUIRY TO BEGIN TUESDAY

"We haven't started our investigation yet, but it will be under way soon, probably on Tuesday," said W. A. Brown, Canadian Northern senior agent, Monday afternoon in discussing the aftermath of the wreck. It is the intention of the road's officers to conduct a search-and-examination of Saturday's railway accident, together with the actions of all employees, any witnesses and the crew of train dispatching.

It is expected that the inquiry will hint that the Canadian Northern investigation of last week's tragedy is being

DAMAGES CLAIM WILL RUN HEAVY

Saturday's big railway smash-up and its possible court results was the principal topic of conversation in legal circles Monday. The accident was clearly blamed by the relatives of injured and killed victims on the figure was the general opinion expressed.

"I'll take some little time to get the ball rolling," said a court official, "but I have no doubt that when the first damage action is launched against the Canadian Northern, it will be a fast runner of a regular avalanche of like cases. I wouldn't be surprised if the aggregate claims total well into the millions."

Midnight With Great Vigor.

The rain which broke the dry spell Sunday has apparently no intention of stopping yet awhile, for after a show of sun and uncertain afternoon, the downpour began again at midnight with great vigor and when The Bulletin went to press it was rattling on the roofs and soaking lawns and gardens though it meant a keep it up for a week. Something over an inch of rain fell Sunday and the following 2 1/2 inches' precipitation is likely to double the forthcoming Liberal convention at Winthrop were appointed.

BUYS HERD CHOICE

BREEDING STOCK

A herd of 230 head of choice heifers and four fancy bulls for breeding purposes, were purchased Monday at the Edmonton stockyards, through the commission firm of Carson, Wood & Veller, by H. L. Graves, for increasing the stock on his 9,000 acre ranch, 8 miles west of Millee, where he now has a herd of 1,400 head of cattle raising.

Mr. Graves, in making this purchase

At this time, fully realizes the benefit of taking advantage of the existing low prices of stock of such character and quality.

FORGIVENESS.

If we had given a loving friend,
How sweet to be forgiven;
'Tis but an earthly foretaste
Of the grandest joy of Heaven.

'Tis human nature's common need,
God's wondrous gift of grace,
Why then in sinful, erring hearts
Should malice find a place?

"Forgive our debts, as we forgive,"
Of old Christ taught the prayer,
We were not made to bite our lips,
If we will should bear.

It is the bridge we all must cross,
Ere we can get to Heaven;
Help me, my Saviour, to forgive,
As I have been forgiven.

Wants to Learn Dressmaking.

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam.—I am a girl fourteen years of age and have a great desire to learn to make my own clothes. My parents cannot afford to let me take a course in dressmaking, but I hope there is some other way to learn. If there is will you please tell me how? I read the Exchange every night and find it very interesting.

AGNES D.

You can learn dressmaking by taking a position with one of the dressmaking firms in town which employ young girls like yourself to run errands and do other odd jobs while learning the trade.

To Clean Black Satin

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam,—Is there any way of sponging black satin?

(Mrs.) N. I. E.

The following method is given by some authorities: Boil three pounds of water, strain through a sieve and brush the satin with it on a board or table. The material must not be wrung, but dried down in clothes wringer, then pressed on the wrong side.

Seba Ladies Gift of "Smokes" for Boys

The Seba boys who are "doing their bit" for the empire will not want for "smokes" for some time to come at least, thanks to the thoughtfulness of the ladies comprising the summer residents at the beach. On Friday night last a splendid picture show was given in the Y. W. C. A. Girls' Camp by Mr. Ottewill, of the extension department of the University, who kindly gave his services for the cause. The limited space was filled, and the program was a most enjoyable one. The pictures being sufficiently varied in character to interest everyone. The proceeds, including that received from the sale of candy which some of the ladies made for the occasion, amounted to about $25.00, which will all be devoted to the purchase of tobacco for the boys at the front.

Tonight the pictures, along with some new reels which Mr. Ottewill has, will be shown in the hall over Pratt's store for the benefit of the Red Cross.

The annual Saturday night "hop" was well patronized this week and a splendid sum was realized for the Tennis Court fund. A number of new residents at the beach were initiated into this weekly feature and thoroughly enjoyed it.

Fully one hundred and fifty passengers were on the Saturday afternoon train replacing the large number of people of any week-end this season.

Rev. O. C. Horsman, with Mrs. Horsman and family, spent the week-end at the beach with friends. Miss Edna Walker is a guest at Mrs. Hurry's cottage for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Grainger, of the C. N. R. city freight office, was a week-end visitor. Mrs. J. A. Boyd spent the week-end at the cottage of Mrs. Sterling.

Nurse McAdams Feted in London

London, July 30.—Miss Roberta Catherine McAdams, Alberta's woman candidate in the soldiers' election for the legislature, was entertained at luncheon yesterday by a number of London's women journalists. Mrs. Shephard, a noted suffragist, said in an address that this was the first time any woman had stood in England for any parliament within the empire.

Famous Women

Madame Roland.

Madame Roland was probably the most remarkable woman of the French revolution. She was born at Paris in 1758. She married in 1781 and, having received an excellent education, assisted her husband in his business affairs and when secretary of the interior after the outbreak of the revolution, and before anarchy was loose, was his confidential adviser. The Rolands were in sympathy with the revolution, but opposed the violence and bloodshed which followed in the course of the outbreak. When the massacres of Sept. 2, 1792, took place M. Roland boldly denounced them in the national convention. After that neither of their lives was safe. When the faction headed by Robespierre, Danton, Marat and other rabid revolutionists gained the upper hand, Madame Roland was cast into prison while her husband fled. After languishing in prison for several months and observing many of her friends sent to the guillotine, she followed them to the scaffold on Nov. 8, 1793. It was she who exclaimed: "Oh, Liberty, how many crimes are committed in thy name!" Her husband, hearing of her death, ended his life.

and I are going to give a picnic in the country next Saturday afternoon. Would you advise us what we should take to eat and what sort of clothes we should wear?

CAROL.

Arrange yourselves to provide different things. One can make meat sandwiches, another lettuce sandwiches, a third cheese and nut or pimento sandwiches, each one making about four times the number of those who are going. By sandwiches I mean thin slices of bread, caught in two so that each double slice of a loaf and its contents means two sandwiches. These are very popular with hungry boys and girls at a picnic.

Besides assigning three or four girls to make sandwiches, assign two to make about four quart bottles of lemon juice, sugar and water, and ask some of the boys to bring ice for lemonade. This can be made in a large new dishpan at the picnic.

Coffee may be taken in vacuum bottles and milk in cans. Ask still another girl to bring fruit, another cake, still another fudge, and you will surely have enough to eat.

Nothing is prettier for a day under the trees than white shirts and skirts, white shoes and stockings, a gayly colored sweater and sports hat in color or plaid with these sweaters. You could not choose a more suitable get-up.

CARDINAL BEGIN FIRMLY OPPOSED TO CONSCRIPTION

"Creates in Our Society an Evil Worse Than It Attempts to Remedy."

Quebec, July 30.—In an interview on Catholicism published by L'Action Catholique, the official organ of the Catholic department of Quebec, Cardinal Begin says as regards the clergy only: "This conscription law is a menace which causes the Canadian clergy the worst apprehensions. This military service as it is proposed, or at least as we are enabled to judge from the speeches and statements its discussions have provoked, is not only a serious blow to the right of the church of Christ, but it is a blow to the very heart of the society which that name designates from the service under arms, but it (the conscription law) creates a partial obstruction to the recruiting of ministers of God as shepherds of souls—as well as to that of the staff of clerical teachers, and through this very fact it creates in our society an evil much worse than that which it is alleged to attempt to remedy."

In Spirit of the Church

The clause as it is written might lose some of its ill if it were interpreted in the spirit of the church. But what guarantees have we that the members of the special tribunals will be all Catholics, enlightened and good? What guarantees have we that the political wisdom will, in the end, overcome the ignorance and the fanaticism of the ignorant? If we judge by the very rude knowledge revealed by certain speeches made in the Commons, we may find that the law is not so much a guarantee as a menace. It is a menace to the very heart of the church, to the very heart of the society which that name designates from the service under arms, but it (the conscription law) creates a partial obstruction to the recruiting of ministers of God as shepherds of souls—as well as to that of the staff of clerical teachers, and through this very fact it creates in our society an evil much worse than that which it is alleged to attempt to remedy."

to feet volume, and reached a height of 35,600 feet. On May 23, 1913, this record was approached by three Frenchmen, M. Bismont, Schneider and Lenore, in the balloon "Leare". They attained a height of 33,574 feet, or approximately 6-1-4 miles. Before the invention of oxygen respiration apparatus it frequently happened that aeronauts died at high altitudes because of the rarified air. On April 13, 1875, three Frenchmen, M. Tissandier, M. Bismont, and M. Schneider, ascended to a height of 5-1-4 miles. Tissandier alone survived this trip. His companions dying in mid-air, and he himself being rendered unconscious.

Behind the Footlights

JOKES AND MUSIC MAKE AN AMUSING PANTAGES' BILL

By Bulletin Dramatic Critic.

The De Michelle brothers, described in the program as "comical wags," pantomimic instrumentalists, made the biggest bit, as far as applause goes, in the new Pantages' bill Monday afternoon. One of them plays a harp and forms the counterpoint to his colleague who performs on a fiddle, his trousers and his cap. "Such a crassness!" exclaimed one woman as she wiped the tears of laughter from her eyes while watching the antics of this individual. There wasn't a thing to the act except that it tickled one's risibilities and the "wags" were recalled again and again and might have been playing now had the stage director allowed them.

The "Musical Military Satire, Miss America," with Jenn Walters and Macklin Morgan, as the bright particular stars, is an amusing mélange of tenuous numbers, feminine pulchritude, and lively action set in a martial frame. The comedienne, who is a lady in Central Park, New York, and the same in uniform, in camp carry on in a hilarious style. A dash of novelty is injected by the presence of one (Smith) Smith, a burlesque, who takes a conspicuous part in the action and about everything else in sight. The notes of "Miss America" is very patriotic.

The moral which the playlet, "Every Man's Sister," seeks to drive home is that it is as much a moral offense to abduct and abandon another fellow's sister as it is to treat your best friend's sister in like manner. The moral is written in the program, but no one can possibly miss the meaning. Frederick H. Roscoe as "the boy," who has brought "the girl" to a hotel and is cold-bloodedly proposing to leave her there, acts with vigor. Victor Knudson has a truly different part to play in the abandoned lady and plays it well. Benedict McGarry, as the friend whose own sister had been treated in a similar manner and who, for a time thinks that the girl is in a missing relative, and is therefore inclined to be nasty about it, although at first he had thought his friend a "gay dog," when he finds out who his companion was, was an effective third in the trio. Melodrama lent a good deal to the playlet, but it was not a bad thing, for the "detective" went in for vaudeville.

A real scenic novelty is introduced in the "Girl from Starland," when that charming young person, seated in a big illuminated star, against a darkened background, swings far out over the audience, singing her lay the while, and occasionally descending so that the tips of her dainty slippers graze the baldheads underneath. The general effect is very pretty.

Chester Gruber is another of the already large array of stage "nuts" who while away a few minutes with a few inanities. He is assisted by a mechanical dog. Also by a mechanical pup.

The current topics film is good. The comedy film is way below par.

There's a youth with soul so deal that in his spare moments hath never read "And another rook in bit the dust?" Mr. Shakespeare didn't say it exactly that way, but after seeing "Wild and Woolly" at the Monarch theatre this week even the amiable Mr. Shakespeare might have been tempted to forget about dour Macbeth and melancholy Hamlet and confine himself to writing "funny stuff" to make the tired heads of his audience smile.

Jeff Hillington, as impersonated by Douglas Fairbanks in "Wild and Woolly" is considerable of a nut. He is a term altogether too mild to fit the case, but it will serve the purpose until you, gentle theatersgoers, have seen this "Hillington" slipping comedy for which we will bet diminutive Anita Loos wrote most everything but the advertising matter.

Back in our swinish hole days we remember a person known as Bert Standish who used to write stuff about Frank and Dick Merrill and all that crowd. We thought Frank seldom lost a baseball game he pitched and never, oh never, through the machinations of the villain. We thought Frank and Dick were about the greatest boys under the sun, but with the advent of our first pair of long trousers and an inclination to be impeccably clean about our person and habits and say "Yes, ma'am," to Sweet Sixteen without blushing too strenuously we sort of abandoned the idea that Frank and Dick were much shucks outside of the Best Standish book. They couldn't lose, it seemed like. If they tossed a coin and yelled MAJESTY—"Bringing Home Father" is the title of the Bluebird to be exhibited at the Majestic Theatre this evening. Today with Franklyn Farnum and "Brownie" Vernon appearing in the principal roles. These clever gents have created a host of admirers through their work in earlier Bluebirds and roles especially adapted to their individual talents and screen manners have been assigned to them in "Bringing Home Father." Followers of Bluebirds will recall with pleasure the appearances of Mr. Farnum and Miss Vernon in "The Clock," "The Man Who Took a Chance," and "A Street from Somewhere." This comedy drama, similar in style and construction, although vastly different in plot, to "Bringing Home Father." The new Bluebird teaches the subject of equal suffrage and prohibition as applied to a municipal campaign, but is no preaching upon either issue, politics serving simply as an enlivening means to a comedy end in furnishing clever entertainment.

TUESDAY, JULY 31, 1917.

The McLeod-Tellier commission has justified the expectations. It has exonerated Hon. Robert Rogers, and condemned Judge Galt. That being understood to be the purpose for which the Hon. Robert appointed the commission, no one will be surprised that it has "livered the goods." All that remains to engage attention is the amount of the "graff" the judicial commissioners will be handed by Mr. Rogers for the services they have rendered him. Considering the nature of the services, and that the public have to foot the bill, the reward might be expected to be on a generous scale.

In introducing his income tax Sir Thomas White went out of his way to assure the rich men that he is personally averse to imposing the tax upon them but had to do it because the public insisted upon it. He gave them the further consoling information that the already existing business tax will be forgiven them when they are called upon to pay the income tax. In taxation, as in everything else, the Government is not leading, but is being pushed along by public opinion. And in this, as in other matters, they provide means whereby their friends may be exempted as far as possible.

Northern Alberta is beyond question in prospects of a better crop than any other section of Western Canada. It might not be over-stating the case to make it all Canada. In sections even of northern Alberta the rainfall has not been as plentiful as desired, but nowhere has the drought been severe enough to destroy the crops. Over the greater part of the district it has been fair, and the soaking downpour of the latter part of the week, with the accompanying cool weather, will still better the conditions for the growth and filling out of the grain. It is most striking that the judges of the local Horticultural Society declare that Edmonton gardens this year are better than ever before. That is a large statement surely, for good gardens are about as regular in Edmonton as the coming of the seasons. It is doubtful if the same can be said truthfully of any other city in the Dominion. As usual, Northern Alberta appears by all the evidence available to be getting the best of the weather that is going.

It is now generally accepted that conscription is not to be enforced until after the elections. Government papers are in fact already defending the Government for holding up the measure until that time, and are duly beginning their election campaign by declaring every one who has offered criticism of the measure to be an unqualified traitor, if not actually in German pay. The excuse for holding up the bill, of course, is that there is danger of rebellion in Quebec if it were enforced without the public being given some sort of a chance to express an opinion upon it. Whether that is the real reason or not, it absolutely destroys the claim that a referendum could not be allowed because it would delay the conscripting of badly needed reinforcements. The referendum would have been over by this time if it had been promptly called. But a referendum would have destroyed Sir Robert Borden's chance to run the election on the conscription issue, which has been his aim from the beginning. His position has simply been that Canada would not put the necessary number of men in the field without conscription, but that if conscription were not tied up to himself the country would endorse conscription and defeat Sir Robert. Conscription, like every other war measure, must be made a piece of political strategy while Sir Robert is Premier.

The dissolution of Parliament will bring the redistribution bill into effect. By this readjustment the western provinces will be entitled to twenty-two members more than those now representing them at Ottawa and the Eastern provinces to eight fewer members than they now have. On any question affecting western as against eastern interests—should such an issue unfortunately have to be fought out—the west will therefore have in the next Parliament a difference of thirty votes in its favor as against the present standing. Taking the eastern boundary of Manitoba as the dividing line, the present representation of the various provinces, and also of the Eastern and Western groups of provinces, is shown in the following table, together with the representation they will have in the next House of Commons.

Saturday night's wreck is the worst railway disaster in the history of the Province. Five lives, at least, have been lost, and more than a score of people are suffering from serious injury. Even at that there is cause for gratitude that the loss of life was not far heavier and the injured more numerous. In fact the wonder is that anyone at all in the two telegraphed coaches escaped immediate death.

Great credit seems to be due to the train crews and passengers for the way they went about the rescue of the injured from the wreckage and the application of first aid. Also to all who had to do with organizing the relief train sent out from the city. No doubt had there been a more accurate idea of the number of injured to be taken care of this train could have got away earlier. Preparations were made for handling a much larger number than really required attention.

There will, of course, be an investigation by a coroner's jury to ascertain how and why the victims met their death. The company are to also make inquiry and may issue a statement to the public. But there is called for, as in every similar occurrence, a prompt and thorough investigation by the Dominion Railway Commission, or some other agent of Government, for the purpose of finding out how a recurrence can be prevented. A coroner's investigation is necessarily limited, and has fulfilled its object when the cause of death is shown. Investigation by the railway company concerned is conducted from the standpoint of the company. The public interest is in having an investigation made with the object of finding out how such accidents can be prevented. Safeguards can only be established when the danger points are known; and it is the business of Government to find out what causes each and every railway disaster.

But one fact is surely made plain from the simple account of what happened when the engines crashed into each other. That is, that the old style wooden passenger coach is not a safe conveyance and should be replaced by the modern steel-built carriage. The wood-built car is even less protection than usual to its passengers when coupled between steel cars. When in use these old type cars are invariably placed in the middle of the train. There are probably railroad reasons for this arrangement. But what happens when such train gets into collision is shown clearly enough by Saturday's accident. Between the steel baggage car and the three rear modern coaches the two old style cars were simply telescoped. But for the fact that the passenger train had practically lost momentum it is inconceivable that any occupant in either of these cars could have escaped death or grievous injury.

In the interests of seamliness, members of Parliament who volunteered to stay home in the capacity of honorary colonels, might refrain from condemning other men who failed to volunteer to go to France in the capacity of privates.

A Fireless Cooker.

Can a reasonably good fireless cooker be made at home? If so give materials and method.

W. J. C.
Any man (or woman either, for that matter), who is possessed of a little gumption, can easily make a fireless cooker at home, which will answer every requirement, give good satisfaction, and cost far less than the patent articles which are advertised for sale. The principal of the fireless cooker is the storing up of heat by heating the article to be cooked in a range in the usual way and then transferring it to a closed receptacle, from which the heat cannot escape except gradually and slowly. The result is that the food is "done" completely, all the way through and there is, beside, a great saving of fuel which is something to be considered in these times.

The first requirement of home-made fireless cooker is a wooden box or case, the tighter in its construction the better. One of about the size of a carpenter's tool chest is about right although it does not matter if it is larger or what its shape is. The main thing is that it should be strong enough to contain sufficient insulating material to retain the heat effectively. If a small box is used, or one with wide cracks, the heat escapes so fast that the food is not cooked.

Next should be made a cushion of hay or wool which will allow the lid to be firmly fastened down. The next step is to fill the box with hay, wool or other non-conducting material. Fine hay is the best. Space must be left in the middle for the container. This is a pall or other receptacle, with straight up and down sides of two-quart size, for preference. It, too, should be provided with a closely fitting lid. Agateware should be used in the construction.

Pack the hay or other material firmly around the pall. The tighter the hay is packed down the better the cooker will work. There should be at least six inches of hay between the bottom of the pall and the bottom of the box. The pall makes a sort of nest in the hay into which it fits snugly, from which it can be easily withdrawn.

The top of the hay should now be levelled off and covered with a sheet of stout wrapping paper, cut to the size of the interior of the box. From a point over the centre of the container cut slits in the paper to the circumference of the pall or of the triangular strips thus formed down against the sides of the "nest" into which the container fits. This is rather a tedious job, but it is necessary. The object is to keep the hay from working loose into the hole. After having been used a couple of times the paper will make a permanent crum. It should be renewed occasionally.

Next should be made a cushion of cotton cloth or some other suitable material, tightly stuffed with hay and made just large enough to fit into the box and rest on top of the pall when the lid is on. This cushion should be at least six inches thick, and a little more when the box is closed.

Now the whole cooker is nearly ready. The cushion should be nearly tight against the top of the box slightly, when it has been fitted into position, so that when the lid of the box is shut down pressure will be needed to fasten the hump, setting a weight on top will accomplish the same result.

If a sufficiently large box is obtained two containers can be placed in it, six inches apart, and two articles of food cooked together. The writer used a cylindrical pulp box, in which grapes are shipped, getting it from a fruit store. This has the merit of being tight, compact and easy to handle.

Many ways will suggest themselves of using the cooker. If you wish to cook a piece of meat, or a tongue, for instance, place the meat in the container, with a suitable amount of water, and bring it to a boil in the usual way. While it is still boiling transfer the covered pall and its contents to the "nest" in the cooker, which should be kept in the usual way. Question of Divorce.
Can a gentleman being married in Canada, moving to the United States and making his home there, getting separated and legally divorced there from his wife, court granting him the keep of all children, but afterwards moving back to Canada being divorced over three years; can he marry here in Canada?

Liberty of the Press Withdrawn

During consideration of the Conscription Bill in committee of the whole in the House of Commons on July 12th the following discussion took place:

(From Hansard)

On subsection 5 of proposed new section 15:

(5.) Any person who prints or publishes or causes to be printed or published in any book, newspaper, periodical, tract, pamphlet, circular or printed publication whatsoever any statement, report, or information, or having effect to advocate, advise, persuade, instigate or influence the public or any person, body or class of persons to resist, hinder, obstruct or impede the due execution of this Act or compliance therewith in any respect or particular according to its true intent, meaning and purpose or for the purpose of impeding or defeating the operation or administration of this Act to abstain from submitting for decision of the proper tribunals claims for exemption or for the purpose of inducing any person, body or class of persons to do so, shall be liable upon indictment or upon summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than five years; and every person who prints or publishes or causes to be printed or published in any book, newspaper, periodical, tract, pamphlet, circular or printed publication shall have been first convicted or not the same shall remain suppressed for the duration of the present war; and moreover the further publication of any book, newspaper, periodical, tract, pamphlet, circular or printed publication whatsoever in any issue of which any such editorial, article, letter, correspondence or other matter, shall have been published is prohibited and the same shall be summarily suppressed and remain suppressed for the duration of the present war.

Mr. Oliver: An editor accused of being responsible for the publication of matter which is an infringement of this section has an opportunity on his part to give evidence in his own defence, and of being represented by counsel. Should not the proprietors of a newspaper have a similar right to be heard before their paper is suppressed? Surely the evidence which shall be summarily suppressed and shall remain suppressed for the duration of the war, as that is provided by Act of Parliament.

Mr. Doherty: It would, of course, be highly desirable to have the matter heard by a court of law. But, made, but I do not see how that could be done effectively. Suppression is a power that is only effective if it is susceptible of prompt exercise. It would expose the printer or publisher in their property if that power were unwisely exercised, but I do not see how it could be effectively exercised by the ordinary process of law.

Mr. Doherty: Who will have power to suppress a paper pending trial? Mr. Doherty: The particular minister will have to be designated by regulation. In a general way the censorship is in the Department of State.

Mr. Doherty: The question of the proprietor of a newspaper and the newspaper itself, we have always had the understanding that the manager or the proprietor, when accused of publishing matter which is an infringement of the law, would be tried on the merits of the question as to the offence committed through the publication of the article. Am I to understand, however, that the Prime Minister has decided that the trial of the man is only a question of establishing his identity or responsibility, but the question as to the nature of the article is a matter entirely for the Government through its censorship? If so, it is an arbitrary authority to be exercised by the Government; it is not to be a matter for the consideration of the court which tries the owner or manager of the paper.

Sir Robert Borden: I think my hon. friend must be referring to something that was said by the Minister of Justice; I do not remember touching upon the part of the question that he first mentioned. At the time I was asked to establish his identity or responsibility, but the question as to the nature of the article is a matter entirely for the Government through its censorship? If so, it is an arbitrary authority to be exercised by the Government; it is not to be a matter for the consideration of the court which tries the owner or manager of the paper.

Sir Robert Borden: I think my hon. friend must be referring to something that was said by the Minister of Justice; I do not remember touching upon the part of the question that he first mentioned. At the time I was asked to establish his identity or responsibility, but the question as to the nature of the article is a matter entirely for the Government through its censorship? If so, it is an arbitrary authority to be exercised by the Government; it is not to be a matter for the consideration of the court which tries the owner or manager of the paper.

Mr. Oliver: And that the court is only for the purpose of establishing the responsibility of the individual? Sir Robert Borden: No, I was speaking with reference to the suppression of the newspaper. When you come to the prosecution against the individual, then you come to the court and the whole matter is fully opened.

Mr. Oliver: When a person is prosecuted because of an article published in a newspaper it is the character of that article, not himself, the character of that article he suffers the punishment provided in this section. What I was urging upon the Minister of Justice was that the suppression of a newspaper, which is a very serious matter, indeed, should in the same way be made the subject of consideration by the court; that newspapers should not be suppressed unless an independent court had decided that the article published was in contravention of the terms of this section of the Act. I was claiming the same consideration for the property rights conferred in the newspaper as is conceded to the individual in his personal rights—the right of trial and of evidence as to the facts. I see no reason why that cannot be done; I see every reason why it should be done.

Sir Robert Borden: I think that it really is; I will tell my friend why. In the case where a newspaper coming into this country in the ordinary course under postal convention is virtually suppressed by being refused admission, a question as to the action taken arises with the proprietors of the newspaper; sometimes it is made a matter of diplomatic inquiry. But the same question does arise, although the persons who publish a newspaper do not happen to be citizens of this country.

Mr. Oliver: That is what strikes me as constituting a great difference between the two cases. In the one case, we may do as we please, or as our neighbors will allow us; in the other, we are dealing with our own citizens and with investments of property very much out of proportion with the property affected by the suppression of the circulation of a paper coming into this country. The citizens of our country who have property rights in a newspaper are entitled to the benefit of every law that exists for the protection of their property; they are entitled to different consideration from that accorded to the citizens of any other country whose newspapers may achieve some small circulation here. I will mention another point of difference between this Act and the censorship or the stoppage of papers coming into this country from a foreign country. The censorship as it stands today is a censorship on account of treason or the giving of information of military value to the enemy. This is censorship directed against criticism of a government policy and administration—a different matter altogether. A discussion of the Government's policy and administration is essentially the right and business of every public newspaper in the country and the assumption of authority of the Government absolutely to destroy a newspaper without let or hindrance, without trial or consideration of any kind, is a very serious matter. I submit that that authority should not be assumed in the terms that the Prime Minister has laid down. Under the conditions which I have tried to sketch, the right of the citizen in his property should be protected by proceedings before the courts.

Sir Herbert Ames: I understand that if a paper transgresses it shall be summarily suppressed and shall remain suppressed for the duration of the war. As that is provided by Act of Parliament.

Mr. Doherty: On the suggestion of the member for South Renfrew (Mr. Graham) it was agreed that for the word "shall" we should substitute the word "may," to provide for possible limited duration of suppression.

Mr. Graham: The Prime Minister intimated that the term might be for a period not exceeding the duration of the war.

Sir Robert Borden: Yes.

Mr. Oliver: The application of the censorship in the past has, I am sorry to say, not been such as to inspire confidence in the good judgment or in the fair dealing of the Government in the administration of that censorship. We have the very startling instance of the suppression of a newspaper published at Sault Ste. Marie. I am not aware of the grounds upon which that paper was suppressed. We are, however, aware that every week-day since the war began there has been published in the city of Montreal a paper that, to my mind, has carried reasonable and fair criticism of the Government, and it has not been touched by the censor.

Mr. Sinclair: Why?

Mr. Oliver: I cannot say why. I am only stating the fact, and the fact, according to my judgment, is such as to render the newspaper proprietors of this country very much alarmed at an enactment, proposed as this is, by which a paper, for criticism of the administration of this Government in regard to a matter which is of most intimate interest to the people of this country, is to be liable to arbitrary suppression. I am under the impression that no such law exists in any other country. In no other country are the newspapers placed under such conditions as to carrying on their business. That being the case, perhaps the Government has not yet considered the actual circumstances in regard to the newspaper business, the enormous amount of money invested in newspapers, the responsibilities that have to be carried by those who are concerned in their conduct and in connection with those investments, and—I am sorry to have to say it—the grave possibility of the power vested in the Government by this section being used otherwise than on principles of absolute fair play and justice. The Government should systematically, for its own credit and for the credit of the country, absolutely avoid placing itself in a position where it could be accused of unfairness in the enforcement of this law. I am not objecting to the principle already stated, that when a law is passed it must be enforced and should be respected; but as to the provisions in regard to newspapers, I am compelled to think the Government has not had sufficient information as to the circumstances or conditions that would not have framed this section in this form.

Mr. Morphy: Will the hon. gentleman kindly name the paper to which he refers, which has prior to this date been publishing seditious articles in the city of Montreal?

Mr. Oliver: The paper that is publishing articles that I consider have a very strong seditious tendency is Le Devoir.

Mr. Morphy: A French paper?

Mr. Oliver: Yes, the paper that was largely responsible for the return of the present Government.

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh.

Mr. Morphy: When the hon. gentleman says that does he refer to articles published prior to 1911 or since?

Mr. Oliver: Prior to 1911.

Mr. Morphy: He is complaining of the seditious character of articles written since 1911.

Mr. Oliver: The articles written since 1911 have, in large measure been in my humble judgment, of a seditious character. Some hon. gentleman asks me that does he refer to articles published prior to 1911 or since? Mr. Morphy: Prior to 1911.

and they will go on with impunity. I quite understand that the hon. members who are so anxious to have this action carried, I say that this is the severest infringement of the rights of the people of Canada that has taken place since this Dominion was formed, and I do not think a few minutes are wasted in just going into the details of it. A little while ago, the Prime Minister, if I understood him correctly, said that there was no sharp dividing line between the offence of inciting opposition to the law and criticism of the law. There is a difference between the two things at the two extremes, but I say that the administration and legislation of this Government in a certain particular is wrong. I am thereby inciting people against the administration or legislation. I cannot criticize adversely the administration or legislation of the Government without in some degree inciting people to opposition to that administration or legislation; and so I take the ground that while the Government introduces legislation worded in the general and comprehensive terms of these two sections, it is an attack upon free speech and upon the right and duty of public criticism of the public affairs of this country.

Sir Robert Borden: There is some force in what my hon. friend says as to the two things shading into each other. The same observation is perfectly true as to the shading between what might legitimately be regarded as sedition and what might legitimately be regarded as the expression of a strong opinion not amounting to sedition. All that is perfectly true, but I do not see that it makes the provisions of the section unwise. We have to deal with these things, and simply have to exercise our best judgment as to whether a particular article is seditious or whether it is something that is just a little short of being seditious.

Mr. Graham: I hope the committee will not be too weary, but my hon. friend from Edmonton (Mr. Oliver) and myself are speaking for a very large and influential class of people in the community. What would the Government do in this case? Suppose a member of this House made a speech in this Chamber that would come under this Act if it appeared in a newspaper as an editorial. Would the newspaper be liable under this Act if it reproduced that speech?

Sir Robert Borden: I do not know.

Mr. Doherty: It is a matter of discretion.

Mr. Oliver: I just wish to say a last word. From what the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice said, I can come to no other conclusion than that from the passage of this Act forward the press of this country lies under threat from this Government, and to that extent is prevented from the exercise of the right and duty of legitimate criticism of the acts and administration of the Government.

The Will of the People and My Own Good Name

In Washington's Inaugural Message he promised to sustain "The Will of the People and My Own Good Name."

And so it is in the world of business. Commercial honor can successfully be built only on quality and personal good faith. By the "will of the people" and the name, Mr. Firestone has built an organization which stands for leadership.

Firestone CORD TIRES

Stamped on every tire is a pledge of Most Miles per Dollar wherever motorists travel. On Firestone super-size Cord Tires it indicates the high-water mark of luxurious, efficient tire performance. Whatever the type or style of tire, the Firestone name is a pledge that it shall fulfill every demand of safety, easy riding and economy.

And this pledge is carried out by an organization of which 11,000 employees are partners in the business, personally interested in serving "the will of the people."

public auction, at the Fairview Hotel in Edmonton, Alberta, on the 1st day of August, A.D. 1917, at the hour of THREE O'CLOCK in the afternoon the following property:

The North West quarter of section two
(2) township fifty-two (52) range twenty-two (22) east of the fourth meridian in the province of Alberta, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less. Reserving unto His Majesty, His Successors and Assigns all mines and minerals.

TERMS OF SALE, to be ten (10%) per cent. of purchase money cash at the time of sale, and the balance according to the terms and conditions, and to be paid by the time of sale, or upon application to the vendor's solicitor.

The above property will be offered for sale subject to a sealed tender bid and free from all incumbrances, save the reservations, limitations, provisions and conditions in the original grant thereof from the crown, and in the existing duplicate certificate of title, and to taxes for the current year and arrears of wild land tax if any.

The vendor is informed that the above property is situated about seven miles south of Old Spruce Grove station on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and is about a mile and a half from a school house, that there is a post and wire fence in fair condition around the greater part of said lands, that there are no buildings on said lands, that there is about thirty acres of dry land that had been at one time cultivated, about thirty acres of silt land on which might be mown in a dry year, and about one hundred acres silt land the greater part of which is covered by water. The soil of the dry land is heavy sandy loam.

GREAT WESTS PUT CRIMP IN ESDALE PRESS

Victors Three To Two In Close Five Inning
Game.

The Great West Garment team defeated the Esdales Press in a five inning game last night at Diamond park to the tune of 3 to 2.

This win of the Garment Makers from the league leaders puts the teams on an almost equal footing, and the G.W.G. feel that a couple more games will put them on top.

The match was a pitchers' duel from the start, with Tidbury officiating for the Esdales and Powers for the G.W.G.
A few costly errors on the part of his team mates caused Tidbury to lose his game.

The five innings were fast, to say the least. Mulhead, for the G.W.G., took the honors in batting by slugging out a double followed by a triple. Mc-Cartney and Esdales' end of the stick by hitting the pill on the nose for four sacks.

The Great West Garment play the North West Blacuit tonight at Diamond park.

TELLS HOW FATHER DIED BY DROWNING

A tale of a drowning disaster in a far northern town, told by a boy who was brought to the city Monday afternoon by Hugh Stewart, Jr., who lives 271 miles east of Prince Rupert on the government railway line between Hazelton and Decker Lake.

Hugh Stewart, Jr., 34 years of age, according to the story told by his son,
was engaged in fishing from a raft on Summit Lake when he suddenly slid on the slippery surface of his support and fell into the water.

Before the son, who was a short distance away on the shore, could reach the scene the elder Stewart had perished.
The body was recovered with the aid of a mounted policeman and a telegraph line worker.

The body is being held Tuesday afternoon to Edmonton cemetery from Connellly - McKinley's undertaking parlors.

SPORTING FACTS AND FANCIES

It is estimated that 10 per cent. of the major league players are unmarried and are likely to be drafted into the army, says a news item.

Well, what of it? If the Greeks, or was it the Romans, had their brave ten thousand, and the British had their brave six hundred, why can't we have our own brave 10 per cent?

The Pirate crew has taken on two new desperate characters to assist in the bloody work of scuttling the other National League teams in the fight for the pennant. They are infidels, named Wolfe and Debus, and perhaps they will help in bringing home the swag. And then again, maybe they won't.

Owen Reese, who did some star twirling for the Cedar Rapids club of the Central Association, is making good on the mound with Hughie Jennings. Keep it up, Owen, but don't get a swelled head or you might have to put on your hat with a shoe horn.

Despite the fact that John K. Tener has announced that he is not a candidate for re-election to the presidency of the National League, there is very little doubt of his receiving the solid vote of the clubs. His administration has met with the entire satisfaction of everyone concerned and when his term expires in December he will receive a unanimous request to serve for another five years. The former governor of Pennsylvania has directed the affairs of the National League with great diplomacy and fairness and has had some of the most difficult problems to contend with. The war with the Federal League broke out almost immediately after he was elected in December, 1913, and peace was restored mainly because of his masterly handling of the situation. Then again his great influence helped considerably to avert the threatened trouble with the Players' Fraternity. The suit for $500,000 brought by the Baltimore Federal League club was withdrawn when Tener showed his hand and in many other ways he has demonstrated his great ability.
This despite the fact that he has very much less authority in handling the affairs of the National League than Ban Johnson has in dealing with the American League.

Fight fans are very much interested in the outcome of the fight scheduled for Labor Day between Carl Morris of Oklahoma and Fred Fulton, the Minnesota heavyweight. The fight has been set up for box fifteen rounds to a decision at Canton, Ohio, the match having been arranged by Matt Hinkle, the well known referee and promoter of Cleveland. Fulton is very eager for this bout, as Morris is the only heavy weight who stands in his way for a bout with Jesse Willard, heavyweight champion. Morris and Fulton fought in New York several months ago when Morris won on a foul. The latter says he will try to knock his opponent out in the coming match and thus spoil his chances for the match with Willard.

Longest Baseball Game On Record.
The longest baseball game on record was played at Carrollton, Ky., during the season of 1867. It lasted from ten o'clock in the morning and was called on account of darkness at one o'clock in the evening, with only seven innings completed. One of the slowest run-getting games between first class teams of which any record can be found was played on July 30, 1862, just fifty-five years ago yesterday. The teams engaged were the Unions of Morrisania, and the Eckfords of Greenport, L.I. The game occupied four hours in scoring twelve runs, an average of three runs to the hour.

Today in Pugilistic Annals.
1923—Kid McCoy defeated Dick Harris in one round at Marion, Indiana.
1903—Jack Johnson and Sandy Ferguson fought six rounds, no decision, at Philadelphia.
1907—Young Britt won the decision over Bat Nelson in 20 rounds at Frisco.
1908—Stanley Ketchel knocked out Hugo Kelly in three rounds at San Francisco.
1906—Matty Baldwin and Charley Griffin fought a six round
no-decision bout at New York.
1911—Joe Mandot defeated Benny Kaufman in eight rounds at Memphis.

Opportunity Hits Did It
PITTSBURG, July 30.—New York lost to Pittsburgh today, 4 to 3. Carson was hit hard throughout the game.
The four double plays kept the visitors from scoring while the Pittsburgh's hits came at opportune times.

Three in a Row Walk
CHICAGO, July 30.—Chicago defeated Boston 3 to 1 here today. Allen walked three men in a row and in the second inning, which with a fumble by Marvynville and a base on balls off
Hagan, gave the locals two runs.

Chicago.....000 000 001—3 5 0

Marquard Effective
CINCINNATI, July 30.—With Mar-quard effective when his meant runs Brooklyn had little trouble defeating Cincinnati here today, 7 to 3. Four triples, two doubles and two singles, coupled with three bases on balls off Marquard only netted the locals three runs. Score:

Pop Bottles for Umpire
ST. LOUIS, July 30.—Umpire Byron was the target of a fusillade of pop bottles in the seventh inning of today's game here which Philadelphia won from St. Louis 3 to 2. Spectators in the left field bleachers disagreed with the arbitrator who called Long out on strikes. The visitors hit Doak hard in the first two innings, when they made all their runs. Score:

Philadelphia.....010 000 000—3 8 1
St. Louis.....000 000 022—2 8 1

PLAYER LIMIT HAS BEEN ABOLISHED

CHICAGO, July 30.—Because of the danger of losing star players drafted for military service, President Hickey of the American Association announced today that the player limit had been abolished. The clubs will be permitted to carry as many players as they desire. Heretofore they were restricted to fifteen. There is plenty of material available, President Hickey said, from the smaller leagues that have been disbanded.

Sidelights on the War

"Black Sheep" in the War.

The recent suspension of sentence imposed upon a forger in New York, who had requested that he might be allowed to "do his bit" before doing his other bit in jail, recalls the fact that the "black sheep" of many families, prominent as well as obscure, have redeemed themselves entirely on the battlefield. In many instances they have won recognition for bravery and in others have expiated their sins in heroic death on the battlefield. The Immortal Foreign Legion of France offers the best examples of those who sought through the sacrifice of their lives to make amends for former disreputes. The Foreign Legion asked no questions. Adventurous spirits from all nations in Europe, Germany included, who were no longer welcome in their own homes, went to Algeria for service with the Foreign Legion. If you wanted to find noble outcasts from the most blue blooded families of Europe,

Adventures of Uncle Wiggily

Uncle Wiggily and the Wasp.

Copyright, 1917, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Uncle Wiggily Longears, the nice rabbit gentleman, was hopping along through the woods one morning, having had a good breakfast in his hollow stump bungalow, when, all of a sudden, he came to a place where some of the animal children were playing. "What are you doing?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Selling pinwheels," answered Little Liffel, the rabbit. "Don't you want to buy some?"—and she waved her paws toward a hollow log lying on the ground. Fastened to the log were a lot of paper pinwheels—blue, green, red, golden, purple, pink and all rainbow colors. As the wind blew, the pinwheels whizzed around like the electric fan on Uncle Wiggily's airship.

and being caught last is no fun. I must see if I can't help."

So he looked around and saw a nice wasp lady caught by a strong cobweb around her thin waist. A wasp is a sort of bee, you know, and they have very thin waists like the dear old-fashioned ladies of many years ago.

"Oh, dear!" sighed the wasp lady. "Don't worry," said Uncle Wiggily with a low, polite bow. "I'll set you free, and he did, breaking with his strong paw the cobweb which the wasp lady could not break for herself.

"Now I can fly away and chew wood," she said, and she did, after thanking Uncle Wiggily, but not stopping to tell him why she wanted to chew wood, which was something the bunny gentleman very much wanted to know.

"Well, that was a little adventure," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "About a half one. I must keep on until I find the other half."

So on and on hopped the bunny rabbit until, all of a sudden, he found himself just where he had started from—the place where the animal children were selling pinwheels. But what a change!

While Uncle Wiggily was helping the thin-waisted wasp lady a big wind had blown away all the animal children's pretty paper pinwheels. "And we can't get any more paper to make others!" said Susie Little Liffel. "And we can't sell them to get pennies for ice cream cones!" said Billie Bushytail.

"I'll see if I can't help you," spoke Uncle Wiggily. But he could not find any pretty colored paper for the children to use in making pinwheels, nor was there any in the one and two cent store. It was all sold and none would be in for a week, he thought.

"Well, I don't know what to do to help you," said Uncle Wiggily. "If I knew where to get paper for you I'd buy you a lot."

"I'll tell you where to get it, and you won't have to buy it, either," said a kind voice speaking suddenly from the bushes.

"Who are you?" asked the bunny.

"I am the wasp lady whom you so kindly helped a while ago," was the answer. "My family and I are the very first paper-makers of all the world, as you may remember. We chew wood up very fine in our strong jaws, spread the pulp out to dry, and that makes paper, just as men make paper today. I and my friends will be very pleased to make some paper for your friends, Uncle Wiggily."

Then the wasp lady called a thousand other wasps and they made a lot of paper from the wood of white birch trees which they chewed.

And the animal children colored the white wasp-made paper with red and blue berry juice, with green leaf juice and with purple, yellow and red flower stains until they had all the colors of the rainbow, and so they made a lot more pinwheels, sold them and had all the ice cream cones they wanted.

So that's how wasps make paper, and if you don't believe it look at a wasp's nest, only don't touch it when the family is at home. And in the next story, if the duck lady's white shoes don't go playing around the tar barrel and get so stuck up they can't go to the dance, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and his buttons.

Letters to Uncle Tom

Was on Roller Coaster

Dear Uncle Tom:—This is my second letter to the club. I was accused to see my other letter in print. I went to the Edmonton exhibition one day and enjoyed myself very much. I was on the roller coaster, ferris wheel and the ship several times, but it rained and spoiled part of the afternoon. I had a letter from daddy. He sent us some lovely cards from France. We will be glad when the war is over. I passed in school so I am in the sixth grade now.
